'FOOLPROOF WAY TO CREATE A DESIGN APP FOR BOTH IOS AND ANDROID.'

It was a delightful experience to see my research unfold into actual results that are relevant. The best part about this is that the results are well validated and it actually feels like a discovery and ofcourse in this process I've gained a lot of knowledge.

Personally, gaining and sharing of knowledge gives me the same amount of joy. The seminar was a perfect platform for me to share what I learnt through the process. Coming up with ideas to keep the student's attention was an interesting task to do. It was really overwhelming when few students spoke about having learnt something new by listening to me talk for 20 minutes.

Speaking of the research process itself, this was a very 'dear to heart' subject and I worked on this with utmost amount of passion. I think the good part about my research was that it had several layers to it which gave it a wholesome perspective. It ended up giving me not just the desired results but more. While I was trying to analyze the difference between the Android and the iOs systems, I ended up learning a lot more about each of these individual apps. The international classroom environment added to the validity of my research as my results are actually based on universal perspectives; My observants happen to be from Spain and India.

If I was given more time, I would have been able to increase the number of observers and also assign them with more tasks so the results could be even more accurate. However, the task that I chose for the analysis was based on the main objective of these apps, which stands to substantiate that the results of this study is still worthy enough.

In the beginning I was a little worried about if I would be able to complete the research on time as it had a lot of components that I had to look at. I would say that the passion towards the subject kept me going which eventually lead me to the completion of this research. The process also taught me that it is very important to have specific research question and sub questions which would let the study be more focused and not diverge into something else in between. Overall It was a very satisfying experience and I was more than happy to know that the CMD students learnt something from my research. I also believe that I made the right decision to discuss only the most interesting and unique parts of the research which helped me stick to the time limit.

To summarize, this experience has given me the confidence to take up more research related work and I now know the process that one has to go through for getting valid results.
